Glencoe House: February 2014 Newsletter

Bringing in the New Year traditionally marks new beginnings and this is certainly the case here at Glencoe House; there are many exciting prospects for 2014.

Introducing In-Suite Private Dining	Private Terraces

A new dining concept has been introduced in partnership with "Bayleaf", a local company run by Brian and Fiona Gunn. Brian comes to Glencoe House with a wealth of experience from Scottish establishments such as The Edinburgh Balmoral Hotel, Loch Lomond Golf Course, Cameron House Hotel and One Devonshire Gardens Hotel in Glasgow. Fiona has a strong hospitality background in front of house operations and events management.

Thankfully our photographs remind us of last summer's balmy nights, as they could seem like a distant memory given the January climes. Large private terraces for suites 1 and 2 will be completed for Easter 2014.

The uniqueness and seclusion that Glencoe House offers is now extended to candlelit in-suite evening

These outdoor spaces are designed to take full advantage of dinners; a restaurant experience but without fellow diners! A seasonal five course menu, priced at £45 per person, will be served at your own dining room table in the privacy of your suite. This will in be in addition to the ever popular locally sourced seafood platter. Regardless of the whether you dress up or dress down, there is no need to leave the comfort of your own suite.

the panoramic views over Loch Leven, the Glencoe mountains and the memorable sunsets. Weather permitting of course, it is a lovely location for breakfast or to end your day with a chilled glass of wine or champagne from your generously stocked in-room maxi-bar.

The Stables: Event Facility

'The Stables' was built in 1896 and is located within the private grounds and close to a 10 acre lake. For those with beautiful high heeled shoes it may be important to note that The Stables is less than 100 metres away from Glencoe House itself and is an outstanding building of architectural note in its own right. Up to 120 guests can be accommodated for a formal dinner, ceilidh meeting or exhibition.

To celebrate the launch of The Stables there will be an open day on Sunday 09th March 2014 between 12-4 p.m. There is nothing like seeing the new venue for yourself!
